

Excerpt from Harlaem River: Its Use Previous to and Since the Revolutionary War, and Suggestions Relative to Present Contemplated Improvement An Historical Compilation from authenticated documents relative to this River, showing the extreme difficulties and expenses that individuals have been put to, to prevent it from being artificially and illegally destroyed, which has been partially accomplished up to the present date, when its actual use is beginning now to illustrate its true value; and hereafter we hope it will have plenty of supporters, not only to prevent further depredations, but to remove the outrages that still in a small degree exist; and such steps may be taken to carry out the artificial improvements which have been suggested and set forth from time to time by long-sighted and wise men for the last half century. This work is prepared for the use of those who feel an interest in the subject. The original documents, from which this is compiled (such as are not already legislative and legal records,) are in the possession of L. G. Morris, of Mount Fordham, Westchester County, who will vouch for their being original papers. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
